

CU★PRESENTS

2023-24 Season

Theatre & Dance

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO BOULDER

NEED TO KNOW FOR THE SHOW

- Refrain from using electronic devices during the performance. Feel free to view this program on your device at any time prior to the performance, during intermission or after the performance ends.
- Photography and video recordings of any type are strictly prohibited during the performance.
- Smoking is not permitted anywhere. CU Boulder is a smoke-free campus.

CU PRESENTS is the home of performing arts at the University of Colorado Boulder.

Remarkable performances are the heart of CU Boulder Theatre & Dance.

CU Boulder acknowledges that it is located on the traditional territories and ancestral homelands of the Cheyenne, Arapaho, Ute and many other Native American nations. Their forced removal from these territories has caused devastating and lasting impacts.

Anna Pillot

Anna Pillot is a dance artist, teacher, production manager, technical director, and adventurer. Her choreography has been featured nationally and internationally, most recently at the 2023 Prague Quadrennial Studio Stage. Pillot enjoys exploring the ways in which technology and dance intersect, coexist and diverge. This research has led her to deepen her exploration of lighting design, projection mapping, video editing and motion capture technology, and to discover enjoyment in supporting the production needs of other artists in the field. Pillot holds a BA in dance performance and choreography, and Spanish from Hope College, and an MFA in dance from CU Boulder.

Choreographer's Note

The 1955 song Que Sera Sera, written by Jay Livingston and Ray Evans and popularized by Doris Day in the Alfred Hitchcock film The Man Who Knew Too Much, begins with the lyrics: When I was just a little girl, I asked my mother what will I be? Will I be pretty? Will I be rich? Here's what she said to me. The chorus continues: Que sera sera, whatever will be. The future's not ours to see. Que sera sera.

Despite being grammatically incorrect (en Espanol the phrase would be “que será, será,”) and sung in a film by a woman who didn’t speak Spanish to her kidnapped son, my abuelos heard a little piece of home in the two languages they’ve switched between for most of their lives. Gracias Tita and Tito, for making a complicated song into a lullaby that gave me permission to exist between worlds.

To mis abuelos, my grandpa, mi mama, my dad, my hermana, mi familia and my family, mis amigos and my friends, gracias for filling my worlds with love. Gracias to my peers, mentors and reader committee for your encouragement, advice and support that got me here. To Kristen, gracias for offering your DJ gifts and the way you see the world through music. To this cast, gracias for coming along for this journey and for how much of yourselves you offered to this process.

I love art-making and world-building with you all.

About the Choreographer

Kate Gomez Moore is an artist whose primary art language is dance. As a maker, dancer, and teacher, Kate sources from the intersections of her lived experiences to create dance that holds complexity and rasquachismo and asks questions of belonging and community. In her work, she aims to foster an environment of curiosity and connection, and is committed to liberatory practices.

Choreographer's Note

Excerpt of Alice Walker's Definition of a "Womanist" from In Search of Our Mothers' Gardens:

"Loves music. Loves dance. Loves the moon. Loves the Spirit. Loves love and food and roundness. Loves struggle. Loves the Folk. Loves herself. Regardless."

This work is a dedication to Black Women everywhere. It could not be possible without the love and labor of my late grandmother (Jessie Mae Adams), my great aunt (Betty Hodge) and my mother (Sharon Bertram). Each of these women were/are beings of the divine—always teaching me about the sacredness that lives within every fiber of our being as Black Women. Thank you to this cast of Black Women who I now call sisters—the nights of storytelling, struggling, and communing together are the roots of this work. Thank you Dr. Nyeck—the first educator to introduce me to the language, history, and power of Black Womanism/Feminism. Thank you Nii Armah Sowah—for sharing the values, aesthetics, and DNA of African Dance that have driven this piece. Thank you Erika Randall—my first reader, my mentor and a fierce supporter of my dreams within and beyond this institution. Thank you Ant Williams—my dear husband who has loved and supported me/this work without question.

If you are witnessing this work, please know that Black Women are Beloved. We each have a responsibility to ensure the protection and empowerment of Black Women in this world. Black Women are committed to the survival of the community. Black Women's lived experiences in opposition to racism and sexism provide tools for the liberation of all people.

About the Choreographer

Jessica Bertram (she/her) is a movement artist of African descent driven by storytelling, research and ultimately, play. She holds degrees in dance and movement studies, and anthropology and human biology from Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. Currently, Bertram is pursuing an MFA in dance at the University of Colorado Boulder with an emphasis in ethnic studies and a certification in arts administration.

Bertram's research and teaching is grounded in Black feminist/womanist theory and communal liberation practices. She is interested in navigating the intersectional oppressions of race and gender through narrative in performance. Bertram believes that making meaning of the Black woman experience is essential for social transformation and the liberation of all marginalized bodies.

Her choreographic work has been performed and awarded throughout the southeast at the American College Dance Association, Emory University, 7Stages Theatre, The Ferst Center for the Performing Arts, The Atlanta Contemporary Museum and The Movement Lab—Home of T. Lang Dance. In 2024, her work will be performed and adjudicated at the American College Dance Association's Northwest Regional Conference in Ogden, Utah. Dedicated to her passion for the arts, Bertram has worked with non-profit organizations, the National Black Arts Festival (NBAF) as their assistant director of the Move/Dance! Program and Moving in the Spirit, Inc. as a teaching artist specializing in creative youth development. Presently, she is a teaching artist throughout the Denver Metropolitan Area with Cleo Parker Robinson Dance, Lakewood Cultural Center and Creative Dance Kids.
